Rich Felsher is a certified ServSafe instructor and registered ServSafe exam proctor. He will conduct a review of the material and administer the ServSafe Food Service Manager Certification Exam. This ServSafe certificate is good for five years. Many states require ServSafe training as a minimum for food service managers. The ServSafe program provides the resources to help keep food safety as an essential ingredient in every meal. ServSafe training is the one commitment to food safety implementation that we should all share every day.

The class will include only the test. This will be a self-study course. Study materials will be mailed to you prior to the conference to prepare for the exam. It is highly recommended that you study the materials before the course. Preregistration is required to facilitate the ordering of exams, certificates, and study materials.
